IT Optimization Planning

Business Need

A company's operational costs are significantly impacted by the cost of IT. Who knows what will happen to IT costs and how they will affect one's bottom line? Highland Partners helps our clients build an IT optimization roadmap that leads to success.

Result

The optimization roadmap clearly identifies the work-streams required for optimization to be achieved. Among other things Optimization could mean, consolidation of helpdesks, improved tools, and/or virtualization of servers to name a few examples.

Value

The IT optimization roadmap enables clients to better understand the effort required to achieve IT related business objectives. This better positions our clients to gain executive buy-in to critical programs that transform the way our clients do business.

OVERVIEW

Our team of IT experts stand ready to assist our clients prepare an IT optimization roadmap. The roadmap leads clients to an optimized operational environment that will dramatically improve IT costs, stability, scalability and security to the degree our clients require to meet business, financial and regulatory requirements.

Highland Partners' consultants, most often, use a two-step approach to IT optimization planning. Step One is focused on the "quick hits", which require less effort, less cost and the least amount of effort to gain true benefits. Step Two addresses the "heavy lifting", which requires additional effort to adequately address the complexities that challenge today's IT infrastructures.

Clients are involved in every aspect of the planning process to ensure the roadmap enables maximum benefit. Typically, Highland Partners performs an IT Assessment prior to performing the IT Optimization service. Subsequently, Highland Partners' experts collaborate with our clients' IT staffs to plan the best way to transform from the current state to the desired IT operational environment.

The IT Optimization Roadmap helps clients understand exactly how the transformation to the desired operational environment is achieved. Execution of Transformation Programs requires an investment in the management of change. It can also require the infusion of new IT products.
